$90,000 ALIMONY HIGHEST GRANTED

Mrs. James A. Stillman

Mrs. Florence H. Leeds

First victory in the famous Stillman divorce case in New York went to the wife of the International financier and president of the National City Bank. It was in the court granting of a record alimony of $90,000 a year, and $47,000 special counsel and legal expense money in defending her suit. Banker Stillman sued his wife for divorce, naming a French-Canadian Indian guide as correspondent and disowning his two-year-old son, Baby Guy Stillman. Mrs. Stillman filed a counter-suit, naming Florence Lawlor Leeds, former Broadway chorus girl, as correspondent. Mrs. Leeds is also the mother of a two-year-old boy. This photo of Mrs. Stillman is exclusive.
